An apostle for our times

Shot and left on the street outside his car, bleeding from gunshot wounds, life looked bleak for Simon Muema about 20 months ago. The victim of a random robbery on Milwaukee's north side, Muema faced a long road to recovery, and his dream of becoming a priest seemed on hold. Read how this faith-filled man has overcome the violent attack to make his first profession of vows with the Salvatorians, in the Aug. 18 issue of the Catholic Herald. #### Teacher's faith tested

About this time last year, the McKeown family's life seemed as idyllic as could be. Patrick, a teacher, was enjoying his summer break and the family learned they would have a new addition, a third child due in March 2016. Yet, life turned upside down for the McKeowns when baby Max arrived about three months early, and just after his arrival, Patrick was diagnosed with melanoma. Read about this amazing family, who with the help of friends and faith, are counting blessings instead of challenges in the Sept. 1 issue of the Catholic Herald. #### Faith on the doorstep

Jesus sent his disciples out two by two to preach the Gospel. Members of St. Anne Parish, Pleasant Prairie, are putting that directive into action by canvassing their neighborhood - in groups of three or five - inviting people to Mass or to pray for personal intentions. Read about this unique evangelization effort in the Sept. 1 issue of the Catholic Herald. #### You can hear us now!

Thanks to generous donations from parishioners, Catholics in the Holyland Catholic parishes in the northwestern part of the diocese can more fully participate in the Mass because they can now hear the Word of God. Read about this new and relatively simple technology called a "Hearing Loop" which has been installed in the three Holyland sites, allowing those who are hearing challenged to be able to pick up sound they otherwise could not hear in the Sept. 15 issue of the Catholic Herald. #### St. John the Baptist welcomes St. John

When students returned to their classrooms at St. John the Baptist School in Plymouth, last month, they were greeted by a floor to ceiling, original oil painting depicting the namesake of their school baptizing Jesus. Read about this stunning piece of art and the local artist who describes this as a “monumental project” that she created for the children of St. John in the Sept. 22 issue of the Catholic Herald. #### Who doesn’t love the circus?

It was summer tradition in Milwaukee. The antique circus wagons, clowns, marching bands and exotic animals would rumble into the city for the annual Great Circus Parade that would draw thousands of people as the chief parade clown, Ernest Borgnine, described, “nothing but miles and miles of smiles.” Deacon Jim Peterson and his wife, Donna, were part of this tradition for years as volunteers and they have recently written a book, “Staging The Great Circus Parade.” Read about their parade experiences in the Oct. 13 issue of the Catholic Herald.
